But Nixon Still Holds Vast Lead

Survey Shows McGovern Creeps Up

By Jack Rosenthal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (NYT). In the last mouth, Sen. George McGovern has started to reclaim sizable numbers of potential Democratic defectors, but President Nixon still holds a wide overall lead, according to the third New York Times Yankelovich electoral vote survey.

Sen. McGovern's gains appear most notable in New York and three other large states, among a decided improvement over the independents, and among voters of Italian and Irish background. But even these gains are only relative. Mr. Nixon continues to hold sizable margins in these and most other categories of voters.

The survey, conducted in the 16 largest states between Oct. 1 and 10, showed that voters preferred Mr. Nixon, 57 to 27 per-cent, with the rest undecided. This 30-point margin represented

U.S. Asks Court To Split IBM's Computer Group By Fred Farris

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (IHT).-The federal government proposed today that the giant International Business Machines Corp.'s computer operations be broken up into competing units both in the United States and overseas.

The Justice Department, stating the government's position in paper in New York federal court, said its aim was to "dissipate the enormous market power of the current IBM computer manufacturing and marketing structure." The government's anti-trust suit against IBM was first filed on Jan. 17, 1969, three days before the Nixon administration took office and the last business day of the outgoing Johnson administration.

A month ago, on Sept. 12, U.S. District Court Judge David N. Edelstein told the Justice Department the court wanted to know precisely what the govern-ment was seeking in the way of relief in the huge anti-monopoly

Analysis of Markets

But today's government memo-randum, which complied with that request, was not as specific as the court presumably wanted. The Justice Department said it could not be more specific now without a more thoroughgoing analysis of IBM markets. The department paper said:
"This further analysis may demonstrate that other forms of divestituze, or divestiture coupled with injunctive relief, may be sufficient to remedy the effect of the alleged monopolization." IOn the New York Stock Ex-change trading in IBM shares was halted in the morning due to an influx of orders. Trading resumed later, and the stock ended the day at 364 1/2, down IEM attorney Thomas D. Barr said in court today the govern-ment was adding new issues to the case by including IBM's overseas business along with the do-mestic operations that were the objective of the eriginal suit. He said the government could not prove its anti-trust charges if the case were forced to trial now and said the Justice Department was using elephant-like "We feel that weight, and we want to stop it," Mr. Barr said. The government suit followed a similar action against TRM filed by Data Processing Financial & General Corp. The Justice Department suit had chargedand IBM denied—that the huge computer firm had shoved com-

The civil complaint said that IBM, which last year had revenues of $8.3 billion, offered lump prices for packages including a computer system, "software" such as programing technology and related support services.

The government sought to break up such a combined IBM service that competitors could not match. Today, the government said IBM's computer operations, which are the major part of its business, units and that the court should order the new entities to "contique to provide service effectively to existing users of IBM couip-

It was widely nttacked as unrepresentative because many of the greatest names were left

The President conceded this was indeed so, but argued it was none of his business to interfere with the decisions of the curator charge. He pointed to the similarity of the savage attacks on that show with those on Baudelaire's collection of poems "Les Fleurs du Mal," at the time they were first published.

In their private apartment on the Ile Saint Louis, in the middle of the Seine, Mr. and Mrs. Pontpidou are known to have assembled a fairly valuable collection of modern art. Notably some Nichola; de Staels and some Vasarelys, The president shed an unexpected light on his apparent preference for modern painting. He related that, at the age of 18, he had acquired his first oil, which was The Woman With a Hundred Heads" by Max Ernst because "old masters never were within my means."

On government policy toward the arts, he said: "I believe the essential role of the state is to give the means, which is buying, ordering, contributing study and research centers, organizing and facilitating exhibitions. What else," he went on, "would thera be, unless one wanted to create an official art,"

Mr. Pompidou said that this, indeed, was the policy of such illustrious of his predecessors as François Ier, and Louis XIV, but that the world had changed and that "by his vocation, the modern artist aspires to independence. if it isn't challenge, and all official art by now is condemned to mediocrity."

With a characteristic Gallic shrug, he suggested that it may be helpful that the state, and the head of state, showed an interest in art. "In any case," he con-cluded, "it cannot do any harm."

Tone Changed

Mr. Lacouture said that in the third interview Mr. Dong changed his tone. In the first two Mr. Dong had been reserved on the chances for peace, but by the third, writes Mr. Lacouture, he held out more hope.

"It is on this (third) meeting." the Frenchman said, "and also on a few significant remarks heard in Hanoi, that I base my confidence in a relatively quick end to the fighting and the passage into a transition phaseincluding withdrawal of the last U.S. troops, an end to the bombing and the blockade and the [start of the] fight for reorganization of power in Saigon—which will not be a phase of total peace.

Mr. Lacouture writes that a new negotiator, Nguyen Co Thach, a 'very close collaborator of Pham Van Dong". has left for Paris to join in the negotiations there. This could not be confirmed at the North Vietnamese delegation today, which was not answering its phone.

It was the second of his threa interviews, however, which Mr. Dong authorized for publication in the Nouvel Observateur, and in which be spoke of guarantees the coalition regime. Asked by Mr. Lacouture whether a suspension of the bombing might help negotiations, Mr. Dong sald simply that an end to the bombing and the blockade would be "part nf a general settlement."

Other points made by the North Vietnamese premier: • The recent liberation of three

U.S. prisoners was a "humanitarian gesture. It shows that we are ready to liberate all the prisoners as soon as an overall settlement is reached."

According to federal sources, Mr. Kalmbach had authority to approve disbursements from the secret fund which at one time had $700,000 and was kept in the safe of Maurice H. Stans, tha chief Nixon fund-raiser and former secretary of commerce. The sources said that the five persons who had control over disbursements from the cash fund were: Mr. Kalmbach; Mr. Stans; John N. Mitchell, the former attorney general and until July 1 the President's campaign manager; Jeb Stuart Magruder, a deputy campaign manager; and a high White House official whom the sources declined to name. Mr. Mitchell has denied that he controlled any such funds.

On Saturday, another California lawyer, Lawrence R. Young, said Mr. Segretti told him that funds for sabotage activities and a $20,-000 annual salary came from "a trust account in a lawyer's name . . . a high-placed friend of the President, and be was instructed to guard that name zealously."

The description fits Mr. Kalmbach, who has been a long-tima friend of the President's and handled sr '; personal business as the purchase of the Nixon estate at San Clemente. Mr. Kalmbach was vice-chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee from 1968 to 1969 and an associate chairman of the Nixon Re-Election Committee this year until April 7, when he resigned.

Patman Document WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP), -The House Banking Committee has documentary evidence that Nixon campaign funds were used to buy electronic equipment for use by one of the men arrested when Democratic national headquarters were broken into, Chairman Wright Patman, D., Texas, said yesterday. Interviewed on TV, he displayed what he said were copies of a check signed by Hugh W. Sloan former treasurer of the nance Committee to Re-Elect the President, and of an accompanying memorandum.

Rep. Patroan said the equipment was for use by James W. McCord jr., one of five men arrested June 17 in the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex. Mr. McCord was security coordinator for President Nixon's campaign organization.

The equipment was described, Rep. Patman said, as "audiocountermeasures radio receiver and alarm " hat "my imderstanding is that it's a bugging device."

U.S. Newspapers Endorsing Nixon at Record 12-to-1 Ratio On Watergate

By Stephen D. Supreme Court Again Refuses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (UPI)

—The Supreme Court, in a 7-2
vote, today rejected one more in a long series of legal challenges to the constitutionality of the Vietnam war.

Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan jr. dissented vigorously, saying that no declaration of war had been made by Congress and that the question really was the constitutionality of "a presidential war." The court acted in a case

Right-Wing Party Sues 3 Networks For Noncoverage

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (AP).—The American Independent party. claiming that network news coverage is "not news at all, but multimillion-dollar contribution to the Republican and Democratic parties," filed suit Friday seeking $25.2 million in damages from the nation's three major television networks.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court here on behalf of American Independent party presidential candidate Rep. John Schmitz, D., Calif., and his running mate. Thomas Anderson. Mr. Schmitz is a member of the John Birch Society. The suit charges the networks have carried out "a virtual news blackout" of American party campaign activities during the current election campaign. The suit says that in 1968.

"due in almost total measure to the networks' full and fair reporting" of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's presidential campaign, the party received almost $20 million in campaign contributions and became a "major political party," receiving 13.56 percent of the votes cast.

U.S. 'Pirates' Raid 2 Fishing Boats, Cuban Radio Says

MIAMI, Oct. 16 (AP).-Radio Havana yesterday described the sinking of two Cuban fishing boets near Andros Island as a "cowardly and despicable aggression" by bands of pirates "operating from U.S. territory."

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said that 11 crewmen were rescued by a helicopter and flown to Nassau, Bahamas, after the two Cuban vessels were attacked and dynamited Wednesday while on a fishing expedition. Sources in Nassau said that a belicopter from the U.S. Navve Atlantic Underwater Testing and Evaluation Center on Andros Island rescued the 11 Cubans who were rowing in a small boat. and brought them to the Babamian capital The broadcast quoted fisherman Juan Jimenez as saying that they were attacked by two inunches while about 30 miles southwest of Andros Island The pirates boarded their fishing boats, pointing their guns, and took them to a nearby island Then, in the presence of the fishermen, the pirates dynamited the fishing boats," the broadcast Bahamian police officials said:

Chile Bids Copper Nations Hold Ministerial Meeting

Chile today called for an early meeting of the mining ministers of the world's four major copperproducing countries to discuss threats posed by an American company's action in Preneh courts over the nationalization of its plants in Chile.

The request was made at a private emergency meeting of the administrative committee of the Inter-Governmental Council of Copper Exporting Countries (CIPEC), according to sources close to the Chilean delegation. Today's meeting was ettended by 13 representatives from the four largest copper producers, Chile, Peru, Zaire and Zambia. The five-strong Chilean delega-tion was led by Chile's ambassader to France, Nobel Prize-winner Pablo Neruda.

According to the cources, Chile is treating the action taken by the Braden Kennecott Corp. of the United States, as a question between the company itself and Chile, and has not contacted the U. S. government.

The American corporation has obtained a temporary seizure or-der from a Paris court on a 1,250ton cargo of Chilean copper. It took the action because it has not been compensated for the nationalization 15 months ago of its Eight Latin American countries meanwhile backed Chile's protest against the French court order. In a written declaration today to the board of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) Genera, the representatives of Argentina, Colombia, Echador, Guatemala, Mexico, Peru, Urnguay and Venezuela said any at-tempt to hinder the nationalization of a country's natural resources violates UN principles on sovereignty of states.

The eight countries declared their solidarity with Chile and demanded resolvie action from the international community to guarantee the sovereign right of a state to dispose freely of its natural resources for the benefit of its people.

High Commissioner Goes

ENTERBE, Uganda, Oct. 16 (AP)—British High Commis-sioner Richard Slater left today for London, where he will consult with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

British officials declined to give any further details, and it was not clear whether he would re-turn here. President Amin saidlast week he wanted Mr. Slater to leave with the last batch of British Asians being expelled be-fore Nov. 8—the deadline for their departure.

Mr. Slater, accompanied by his wife, was seen off from the air-port here by senior High Com-mission officials. There was no one present on behalf of the Ugandan government.

Gen. Amin said last week he wanted Mr. Slater to leave because he had been telling British teachers to leave Uganda and saying that there was going to be trouble here. Mr. Slater denied this allegation. Yesterday Uganda's Foreign Minister Wanume Kibedi said Uganda had decided to expel the high commissioner because he was "no longer promoting good relations between Uganda and Great Britain."

Russian Visions Space Ship Using 3 Sources of Power

By Theodore Shabad

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (NYT).-The Soviet Union's leading rocket designer has predicted that by 1980 there will be flights into deep space powered by a combination of chemical fuel, nuclear and electric engines.

Such a combination "will enable spacecraft to cover huge interplanetary distances at tre-mendous velocities," the rocket designer, Valentin P. Glushko, said in an interview published here this weekend.

Mr. Glushko, 64, who has been associated with the Soviet space effort since its inception, is one of the few publicly identified leaders of the secrecy-shrouded program. The identity of others has generally been disclosed only after their deaths.

In his view, the future combination rockets will be launched with liquid or solid chemical fuel. as is now the practice. Such chemical fuels depend on an oxidizer for combustion and develop the powerful thrust needed to overcome the earth's force of gravity.

Once beyond the dense layers of the earth's atmosphere, Mr. Ghishko suggested, a nuclear rocket engine would take over. The United States is known to experimenting with nuclear propulsion systems in the socalled Nerva Project.

Finally, in interplanetary space, according to the Soviet rocket designer, electrical engines of low thrust will be able to impart great velocities to spacecraft in the absence of gravity.

"By the end of the decade," Mr. Glushko was quoted as having said, "such carrier rockets will find wide application."

The future of rocket propulsion systems, including the use of nuclear-power generation is also understood to have been discussed at the weeklong Astronautics Congress in Vienna that ended

New Israel Policy: Preventive, Not Reprisal, Raids

Israel served notice to the Arab world today that its latest air raids into Lebanon and Syria were just the beginning of a new policy of preventive rather than remissi strikes against Arab guerrillas there.

Premier Golds Meir told the Knesset (parliament) that "our war against the Arab terrorists... cannot be limited to defensive means, to safeguarding and selfdefense."

Instead, she said, "it must be active in all that has to do with the detection of murderers, of their bases, their actions and operations, to foil their designs and, in particular, to stamp out the terrorist organizations."

Mrs. Meir said guerrilla attacks abroad only "lend added force to the justification of our initiatives to strike at the terrorist bases and concentrations in the neighboring countries, from which they set out to carry out their criminal missions."

She spoke just 24 hours after Israell planes had hit four guerrilla bases in Lebanon and one in Syris in the first strike under the new "hit-them-first" policy. She said no Arab state that supports the guerrillas shall be olved from responsibility for secret talks between Dr. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho and a growing belief in the Sonth Vietnamese Army that a cease-fire is imminent, it is difficult to separate fact from mood, hard negotiation from soft talk. But there can be little doubt that the status of the Thien regime is central to the discussions.

It has become a cliche of American politics that the war is being fought to insure the tenure of President Thieu. And Mr. Thieu's conduct of political affairs has not been of a kind to endear him to the American public or to justify his continued hold on power on democratic principles. But the real question ahont the Thieu regime-from the administration standpoint— is not its continuance but its alternative.

Contrary to Sen. McGovern'e assertions about his own peace plan, the North Vietnamese do not want an American withdrawal before there is some kind of political settlement, even if it is a transitional one. The Nixon policy also looks toward a political adjustment of some kind, although President Nixon did offer a proposal of a cease-fire, followed by American withdrawal, leaving the political arrangements to the Vietnamese, although preferably under international supervision. But what kind of transition regime can be established?

President Thieu has a constituency in South Vietnam. Its validity, despite electoral manipulation and suppression of the opposition, is at least as good as that of the North Vietnamese Politburo or the heads of the Viet Cong apparatus. So far as legitimacy is concerned, the ideal protagonists in any

With rumor swirling in the wake of the diplomatic dealings would be the present Saigon government and that of Hanoi,

But this is impracticable—neither Hanoi nor Saigon really wants to deal with one another. So some arbitrary selection will probably be made. Hanoi asks a tripartite grouping: representatives of the Viet Cong. of the present government and of the more or less silent non-Communist opposition. The fact that this was tried in Laos, and failed, offers a warning-but cannot be allowed to form an insurmountable obstacle. Nevertheless, the personnel under any imposed, interim government for South Vietnam is a difficult matter to decide.

There are two Vietnamese armies in the South, one taking its orders from Saigon and the other, despite the pretenses of an autonomous Viet Cong, from Hanoi. Whatever government is selected must, if there is to be any kind of an effective armistice, command the allegiance or at least the consent of both forces. It cannot be assumed, as so many Americans assume, that there is no loyalty whatever to President Thieu; at the same time it is apparently more than Hanoi will concede to allow him to function in any capacity. He, of course, is reluctant to give up any anthority. This is the real dilemma in the negotiations. It is not one created out of whole cloth by the Nixon administration to justify continued war nor, so far as can be detected now, would it disappear under the McGovern plan. That it shows any signs of yielding to diplomacy is encouraging. The alternatives are not, as campaign oratory suggests, stubbornness by Mr. Nixon or surrender by Mr. McGovern. It lies, rather, in an approach to statesmanship on the part of both Hanoi and Saigon.

The Wallace Factor

By Anthony Lewis

WASHINGTON -Among some political observers it has become a sport to poor-mouth George McGovern as a presidential candidate. His failings, it is said, have cost the Democrats what should have been a good if not favored position in 1972. That argument seems less persuasive when one compares the latest Gallup Poll with the figures at this point in the 1968 campaign. Here is the current result, just published:

Undecided-6 percent. These were the figures reported by Gallup at this time four Nixon-43 percent Humphrey-31 perceot. Undecided—6 percent.

Nixon-60 percent.

McGovern-34 percent.

Little Judge Out

The big difference is George Wallace. There are always many factors in political choice, but that is the one that leaps out of the comparative figures: The little judge from Alabama is not running in 1972.

Other surveys of voter preference indicate that Wallace could do as well in this election as the last if he were on the ballot Most important, with Wallace out 80 percent of his supporters go for Nixon—and would have gone that way last time.

If you take the 1968 Wallace support and distribute 80 percent to Nixon, you find that the 1963 Gallup table would look very much like today's. In short, George McGovern is attracting about as many votes as Hubert Humphrey-although he is running against an incumbent President who has totally committed the resources of the White House

But of course McGovern had to do better than Humphrey, to win, almost certainly has to take a good part of the Wallace vote. Back in the primary period his strategists argued that he could. Wallace supporters were alienated people ready for a change in America, they said: what was needed was a New Populism to bring them along with traditional liberals.

Probably the theory was romantic all along. The people who tell poll-takers that they like Wallace are very often disaffected from the system, it is true; they condemn politicians of both major parties. But they are culturally conservative. They tend to be for the war, against welfare and social reform and trendy life styles.

Unfair Tax System . The one area in which the Wallace people are most strongly for change is the economy and taxation. They and indeed a majority of all voters regard the American tax system as unfair. That should have been an issue overwhelmingly helpful to Mc-Govern, for he was committed to sweeping tax reform. What went wrong? McGovern has simply not dramatized the grotesque inequities that enable ths rich in America to get richer at public expense. He has failed to capitalize on the pervasive resentment of our tex system. By careless thinking of his own and bad staff work he seemed to focus attention instead on the welfare problem, where, to put it bluntly, there were no votes to

In the depth opinion surveys, people say that Nixon likes the rich and McGovern the poor. When Wallace supporters and blue-collar workers generally face Asta. the choice in those terms, one opinion analyst says, "They would rather identify with successful with what they consider the shiftless poor." The failure on that score has been amplified by personality. George McGovern has come through as "soft," when Wallace voters were likely to be open to persuasion only by a reformist candidate who seemed tough. Probably only a Kennedy kind of figure could have done it: perhaps only a Kennedy. When one understands the iming that there should be a serious rior. It calls McGovern an isolationist and says he would "abruptly terminate" American aid to refugees and orphans in

Crude Lie

The lie is so crude that the executives or money men than mind reels: George McGovern wants to end the American bombing that creates the refugees and orphans, and then supply humanitarian aid in large amounts. It is Richard Nixon who has bombed Indochina for the last four years. Is it conceivable that any thoughtful liberal will forget that in a misguided attempt to be hard-nosed?

This they did by holding a "sit-in" in one of the university's public buildings, planning to embarrass the royal party by forcing them to pick their way between the students' recumbent forms. Unfortunately, the building they chose was either not onthe royal itinerary at all, or was to be visited only towards the end of the tour. The consequence was that the boys and girls grew tired of sitting on the floor having no notice taken of them, and—to while away the time— began to drink. Having thus fortified themselves, some of them rushed off to where the royal party was, and started to interest of liberal-minded people shout rude words and sing rude—those who worry about wire—songs, and to push and shove, and generally to try to make has decided to run on what he is parlaying into an unconsummated pledge of Richard Nixon, Accordingly the McGovern campaign took out full page ads on the fourth anniversary of Mr. Nixon's now-famous declaration: Those who have had a chance for four years, and could not produce peace, should not be given another chance."

I say now-famous declaration cause it did not cause a ripple at the time it was made. It was in Santa Monica, on Oct. 9, 1968, at the Civic Auditorium, Mr. Nixon was addressing a crowd of 4,000 people. The New York Times headlined the speech the next day: "Nixon Promises to Seek a Law/Banning Lewd Mail to Children." Which reminds me, I am not aware that Mr. Nixon succeeded in fulfilling that promise—he was blocked by a Democratic committee. Neither am I aware that George McGovern has hit him for this quite concrete failure. On the other hand, Mr. McGovern isn't likely to do that. Take away their lewd mail, and what have the children got left? That would be the final betrayal of George McGovern.

Nixon Heckled

Way down in the story, the reporter tells of the heckling of Richard Nixon by peace protesters. It was to them that he shouted out his judgment that "those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace, should not be given an-other chance." The literalness with which Mr. McGovern is taking that campaign pledge suggests a crabbed analytical mind.

For one thing, if you go ahead and take the statement literally, why should we suppose that Nixon was correct? McGovern takes him to be incorrect in almost every other particular. So why should he happen to be correct only when he lays down the law that a President who cannot produce peace in four years should not be re-elected? Is Mc-Govern saying that the American people were wrong in voting for

NEW YORK.—George McGovern Abraham Lincoln in 1864? He had four years, but hadn't yet brought peace. Were the American people wrong in voting for Franklin Roosevelt in 1944? He certainly hadn't produced peace. If one gets away from the literalness of the term, what is it that is generally meant by "producing peace"? It means producing peace for the United States, Peace for the United States is generally measured by an end to the loss of American lives. The United States is still spending money in the Indoehinese theater. But the expen-diture of that money, a small percentage of our total military budget, was not the major issue accosted by Nixon in 1968. Clearly, if he had said that by the end of his term of office not one American soldier would be dying in Vietnam, that state-ment would have been considered more newsworthy than his pledge to take the dirty pictures away from the children. But, in fact, Mr. Nixon has accomplished peace in this sense, Substantively, he has lived up to his pledge at Santa Monica of four years

Fighting remains, so that technically it can indeed be said that he has not "produced peace." How can anyone produce peace, so long as there are people in the world who are willing to fight to dominate other people, and so long as there are people willing to light to maintain their independence? What George McGovern would do is to punish those who would fight to maintain their independence. So that what George McGovern's pledge to the American people is reducible to is: I pleage that I shall produce peace in the world by denying to anyone the arms with which to resist aggression.

But McGovern does not encourage people to take him liter-ally. Whether he is promising a thousand dollars to every man, woman and child which promise he now asks us to accept metaphorically. Or whether he is promising to back Eagleton one thousand percent, He is now formally pledged to breaking promises made by three American Presidents to the people of South Vietnam-to stand by them against aggression. He asks the American people to elect nim in order that he might repeal what pledges his predecessors have made. It becomes altogether involuted. But even though Mo-Govern will lose the election, he has forever damaged American credibility, and in doing so, he will damage the cause of peace for years and years to come. - Letters

Pentagon Budgets

The recent Vietnam cease-fire rumors and the now predictable stock market response demonstrate once again the instincts toward peace of the business community. This is now too well documented by Wall Street in-dicators to be questioned. Poll after poll before the present election showed a steady and inereasing anti-war sentiment among the American people. This aises the vital issue: Who then is driving the Vietnam war and is powerful enough to have so strongly influenced two hardened politicians as Presidents Johnson and Nixon? A study of the Deiense Department budget gives some clue. During the Johnson escalation, a peak of about $30

For the Louvre exhibition, she mixed up prints, drawings and photographs with original oils and precious objects to give a logical progression to François career as a collector. This was an innovation and Louvre curators Michel Laclotte and Sylvie Béguin had "an open spirit."

A 201st 'Crime and Punishment'

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss DARIS, Oct. 16 (IET).—André Barsacq's version of "Crime and Punishment" (at the Theatre de l'Atelier) must be at least the 201st attempt to move the monumental novel into the confines of the proscentum such. Such an attempt is as wrong-headed as dragging Michelangelo's "David" into a low-cellinged chamber where it would have to lie prone. Bersacy's engineering operation as with the previous effortsfunctions on an erroneous premise, despite all the reverence, muscle strain, perspiring, pushing and shoving that have gone into it. The dimensions of this novel and the measurements of a play are irreconcilable. The book defies literal transposition and to transplant it scene by scene is quite pointless. A playwright, set the task, must extract the essence of the novel and then, with its major conflict and general story as guides, recreate it not reproduce it-in theatrical form. To dramatize Dostoevski satisfactorily would require the dramatic imagination of Haupt-mann, the spellbinding intensity of Stringberg and the poetic inspiration of Hofmannsthal Are there any takers? Dostoevski's preoccupation with transgression and retribution— the binding thread that runs through all his fiction-has been traced by his biographers to an early experience. As a child of 8 he attended a Passion Week mass with his mother in the Moscow cathedral. An acolyte placed an enormous book on the lectern in the middle of the church, opened it and read, There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job, and that man was perfect and upright and one that feared God and eschewed evil..." The little boy was shaken with a strange ecstasy, a mixture of awe and joy. If Job's faith touched him Job's rebellion must have found an echo in his heart. In later life, novelist was never able to read those pages without what he called "morbid elation." To capture this emotion is the duty of the playwright who would adapt "Crime and Punishment." The instability of dramatiza-tions of the novel is notorious. Man and boy, I have sat before countless reproductions—those of the cinema as well as those of the stage and, hand on heart. I cannot recall a single one that, save for isolated flashes, even faintly suggested the turbulent power of the original. In the Richard Mansfield version the ineptness extended to the proposed title, "The Fool Hath Said in His Heart: There Is No God'." which had to be reduced to "The Fool Hath Said" to meet the marquee restrictions. Barsacq has delivered the usual dramatized novel with all its familiar flaws. There is strained continuity, abrupt jumps, characterization by explanation, drama only by proxy. He, like his predecessors, highlights the main events: Raskolnikov brooding in the solitude of his garret, his murder of the pawnbroking crone, his first summons to the police station, the family and Sonya episodes, and the student's con-frontations with his sly pursuer. As a piece of stage carpentry it is roughly hewn and sprawling.

Niels Arestrup . . Rasko!nikov.

Instead of assembling the material in organized form, Barsacq presents it in innumerable scenes, film fashion, requiring constant scenery shifting. It is tha novel stuffed, the work of a theatrical taxidermist.

It has the advantage of being well played, especially by Niels Arestrup as Raskolnikov and by Paul Le Person as his bland hunter, but as a play it is again Dostoevski boiled down into an old-fashioned melodrama.

Gorky's "The Lower Depths," one of the regulation sights on any Cook's tour of modern drama, is a director's dream. Among the directors who have realized their reveries of it to wide acclaim are Stanislavsky (who first staged it and created the role of Satine) Max Reinhardt, Barnovsky, Leo Bulgakov and Arthur Hopkins. One might imagine that all manners of presenting "The Lower Depths" had been exhausted by now, but Robert Hossein has come along with a few new ideas and an inviting production

His mise-en-scène of the current revival at the Odéon discloses an intelligent and novel conception. He employs the split stage with the dismal cellar on a lower level and above it, the courtyard that leads to the belowstairs flepheuse. He opens proceedings violently with a dusty Russian rumble, a knife fight, on the upper region. This sets the Gorky tone of uncompromising realism.

There are other original touches, too, such as the sounding of the pipes of Pan in the

Recollections of Beaver

IN "American Cooking: Southern Style," in the Time-Life Foods of the World series, Eugene Walter reports that while visiting a Negro community in Alabama he was shown some unfamiliar meat with the explanation: "That's beaver. Very dark meat, very mild and tasty. You parboll

Neither of these estimates coincides with my personal recollection of beaver, which I do not remember as having been particularly dark in color, rather the contrary. It offered, un-pleasantly, little resistance to the teeth. It impressed me as resembling rather flavorless rabbit. I ate it roasted, but felt it would have been better stewed, with high seasoning. I was chiefly fascinated by the bones, which I recall as wide. flat, and as light as those of birds.

My memory may be at fault, for this was in 1957 and I have not tasted beaver since. It is probable, however, that the conflict between these two reports and my own experience is the result, in the first case, of the fact that I ate the European beaver (Castor fiber) and not the larger American beaver (Castor canadensis), and in the second that Larousse was talking about wild beaver while the animal I ate was domesticated. A French company had set out to raise beaver for the table, which was how I got to taste it. I have

If domesticated beaver still exists in France, a clue to what has happened to it may be provided by the 1967 "Larousse Gastronomique," which has dropped its earlier description of beaver meat and notes now that the flesh of domesticated beaver "is excellent

Wild beaver would hardly get into French pate for the animal has become too rare in Europe. and consequently too costly, to serve as a pate ingredient. It was a common animal in earlier days, and may even have given its name to Paris's other river. the one of whose existence many Parisians are unaware, for nowadays it runs through the city underground. Its name is the Bièvre, which was the old French word for beaver (the present word is castor). The Bièvre was lined with tanneries and one of the skins they treated was, of course, beaver. For that matter, there may have been beaver dams in the Bièvre valley.

Russia, could be the source of the beaver tails eaten in Poland during Lent, by an ingenious application of logic which argues that since the beaver's tail is almost always submerged it may be considered as a sort of honorary fish. This seems to be the only survival of wild beaver eating in Europe, for the Germans have abandoned the eating of beaver legs, which they relished in Renaissance times Castoreum, prepared from a secretion of beaver glands, resinous in aspect and strong in odor, was formerly used to make a stimulant and anti-spasmodic drug. It is still employed in perfumery. The mountain beaver (Aplo-

Pujitsu's net profit rose 18.8 percent in the half-year ended Sept. 30 on a sales gain of 17.3 percent, the electronic equipment producer said today.

The company said net profit was 3.9 billion yen ($12.3 million), up from 3.2 billion yen a year earlier, while sales were 88.7 billion yen compared with 75.6 billion yen.

Company officials attributed the higher results to increased demand for data processing, telephone exchange and radio transssion equipment.

Hughes to Sell Oil Tool Division

Hughes Tool Co. says it has filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission for a proposed offering of all five million shares of the capital stock of a new corporation it formed to acquire the business and assets of its oil tool division. At the time of the offering, the new corporation will become the Hughes Tool Co., and the present Hughes Tool Co. will change its name to Summa Corp. All of the assets and businesses of the ot Hughes Tool Co., except for the oil tool division, are to be retained by Summa Corp., whose sole stockholder will continue to be Howard R. Hughes. Mr. Hughes will own no interest in the new corporation after the proposed offering. IBM Systems for Textile Industry

International Business Machines has introduced a low-cost optical scanner and a new system for monitoring the weaving and knitting process in the textile industry. It says the IBM 3886 optical character reader can enable many firms to use optical character recognition for the first time, allowing them to bypass the interim data entry step of converting information to another chine-readable form, such as punched cards.

Rental for the 3886 begins at $1.970 while pur-chase prices will start at $81,000, IBM says. It says the Chinese are interested in a hot rolling mill, a cold rolling mill, a strip mill, a silicon steel plate mill and a galvanizing plant, all computer-controlled and capable of processing a total of 3 million metric tons of steel a year. At Asahi Trading Co., the "friendly" firm considered most likely to he involved in the transaction, an official says a formal announcement by "a certain company" will be made in a few days. Japanese commentators speculate that Nippon Steel, the ration's largest teelmaker, will be the company most likely to receive such an order.

TWA, Burroughs Settle Dispute

Trans World Airlines and Burroughs, the com puter maker, have amounted settlement of a $70-million damage suit filed in 1970 by TWA and an $11.5 million countersuit by Burroughs against TWA. Although the airline did not claim victory in the litigation that involved a 1965 data-pro-cessing contract, terms of the settlement clearly favored TWA. Burroughs says the cettlement will result in a charge against its 1972 earnings of about $4.8 million after taxes, or 26 cents a share.

"That's a nice bundle of credit for the United States," one central banker said with a laugh. The dollars are attracted to Japan because of expectations the yen will be upvalued once again. The rise in the yen's value last December, as part of the cele-brated multilateral currency realignment, has not had any measurable effect yet on the Japanese trading position.

Upvaluations are supposed to make a country's foreign trade less competitive, but Japan is still running un huge surpluses rather than the continues of the con running up huge surpluses with the United States while at the same time directing more and more of its sales effort to Western Common Market forecasts show that the Japanese this year will sell $1.5 billion of goods more to the EEC states than they will buy. Japanese EEC trade was in equilibrium back in 1968.

In the first half of 1972 the Common Market imported 34 percent more from Japan than in the first half of 1971. The com-parable increases in the first half of 1971, 1970 and 1969 over the previous first six months were: 25.2, 38.6 and 38.3 percent.

Cost Rises Erode Profit Margins at S. African Mines JOHANNESBURG. Oct. 16 (AP-

DJ).—Strong increases in the costs of extracting gold from South Africa's mines are eroding the benefits arising from the sale of bullion at the sharply higher free-market levels, mining anslysts say.

They note that in the quarter ended Sept. 30, costs rose 6 per-cent, which they calculated was equivalent to an annual rise of 26.3 percent. The rise in the June quarter was 2 percent, and only three years ago the annual rate was 1.9 percent.

Analysts' disquiet about rising costs is growing despite a sharp rise in pre-tax profits in the Sep-tember quarter, to 163 million rand from 75.5 million rand a year earlier.

In the September quarter, the processing cost of each ton of gold-bearing ore was 921 South African cents, up from 866 cents in the June period.

Much of the sharp rise resulted from higher wages paid to both white and non-white mineworkers during the quarter. Some experts hope that in the current quarter, price rises will not push up costs faster than the 2 percent recorded from March to June, but not everyone is as

Industry figures show that part of the reason for the relatively low cost rise in the June period was a jump in the amount of ore milled to 16.2 million metric tons from the March period's 174 million tons. This helped spread fixed costs over a larger throughagainst the major currencies of U.S. wholesale price index at more then twice the rate of consumer price increase. Another worry is the large and inflationary U.S. Europe for the last three months. Pollowing the decision of the budget deficit. What will happen if the Japanese finally revalue the yen? Central bankers have been studying the implications of such action on Europe, and though they would hope that it would eventually improve Europe's competitiveness against Japanese goods, they are lars back cheaper and thus make a profit. Instead they have to buy back at more expensive rates, a little disturbed by the shortterm effects. The initial reaction, a French central banker said, will be to dis-lodge all those dollars that have flooded into Jepan. Where will they go?" he asks. "I'm airaid they will probably come to Europe.

Fourth Session in Row

By Vattanig G. Vartan

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (NYT). -A loss of 14 1 3 in International Business Machines helped to unsettle New York Stock Exchange prices today as the market skidded in another nervous session. The Dow Jones industrials fell 8.80 to 921.66.

IBM, the classic growth stock of Wall Street and the biggest bolding among institutional investors, traded as low as 362 1 2 hefore closing at 364 1/2 for its whopping decline. It traded ear-lier this year at a record price of 426 3,4.

The afternoon sell-off followed a Justice Department statement that it would seek to break up the giant computer company if the government won its antitrust suit filed nearly four years

This decline of 14 1/2 was equivalent to a loss of $1.67 billion in the market value of IBM stock. Last week, in anticipation of the Justice Department's move for proposed relief in the antitrust suit. IBM shares dropped 22 1/2

General List Drops The general market posted its fourth substantial decline in a row, reflecting investor qualms about higher taxes and interest rates for 1973, as well as the lack of any apparent progress in Vietnam peace talks. This assorted set of worries has saddled market psychology, producing a decline of more than 30 points in the Dow industrials since last Wednesday. Aggressive hidding for stocks has been virtually non-existent, as demonstrated by today's decline on a turnover of only 10.94 In addition to IBM, other issues suffered from adverse news

Pacific Petroleums, the volume leader, plummeted 4 1/4 to 39. This decline was attributed to a statement last week by the British Columbia government that it may take over Westcoast Transmission Co., which is 27 percent owned by Pacific Petroleums.

The American Stock Exchange index fell .11 to 25.69 as declining issues outnumbered advancing ones 595 to 288. There were 339 stocks unchanged. Volume fell to 226 million shares from 2.4 million Friday.

When you need bankers who know the petroleum industry, consider Morgan Guaranty

If you are in the petroleum industry, where capital needs are immense and tax considerations are complex, you need bankers who understand the business of natural resources. Morgan Guaranty has a petroleum group comprising specialists with this kind of expertise.

These experienced bankers devote full time to serving our oil and gas customers in the U.S. and around the world. They know today's engineering and energy problems, and they know how to meet the industry's financing needs, from project lending to production payments. Because our special group understands the business, they can tailor the best all-around financial program to fit specific requirements...whether it's providing a development loan for a medium-size company, arranging antipollution financing, or managing multibank syndicates. Recently Morgan played a key role in helping to organize a $900-million loan to a British company for developing a North Sea oil field—the largest private bank financing ever.

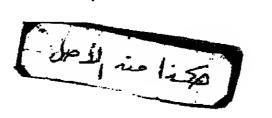

Morgan's specialists travel extensively to petroleum centers the world over. They also have immediate access to the bank's international banking experts in New York and in all our overseas offices, where, in addition to petroleum experience, you will find experts in foreign exchange, international money management, lease financing, export finance, corporate trust—the complete range of corporate financial services.

Whatever your banking needs, consider Morgan Guaranty. You'll be in good company. We're already helping 96 of the world's 100 largest corporations solve their financial problems.

EEC membership next year and the best tax concessions in Europe will attract even more industries to Ireland.

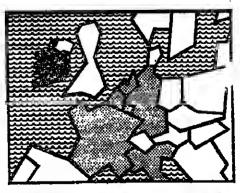

Already many European firms have set up or re-located in the Irish. Republic. They enjoy many advantages, not the least being full exemption from taxes on export profits for fifteen years. In the EEC, Ireland's tax incentives will remain the best in Europe, with duty-free entry to a market of 260 million (60 million of them right next door). Other benefits:

Workers. Excellent production workers immediately available, intelligent, keen and easy to train. Grants. For sites, buildings and new plant, for training workers, for research and development.

Factory Buildings. Modern factories with full facilities are available at favourable rents.

Transportation. Excellent uncrowded highways. Container service to British and Continental ports. Immediate access by air to world markets.

For complete information on all aspects of setting up industry in Ireland call Niall Mooney at Paris 256 00-49 or John O'Sullivan at Cologne (0221) 37 31 00 or Eoin O'Sullivan at London 01-629 4214.

A basic principle of discarding is to retain adequate length in any suit in which declarer or dummy is known to bave begun with four or more cards, -Adequate" here means a length equal to that still held by the opposition. A declarer who bears this in mind can sometimes draw. the right conclusions about the distribution in the end game. South did so in the diagramed deal.

After South had bid both minor suits, North made a fourth-suit bid of two hearts. This was a waiting bid made not se much with any idea of playing in hearts, since South was most unlkely to have four hearts to raise, but to invite a preference in spades.

South showed a heart stopper by bidding two no-trump, for two hearts did not promise hearts. and North settled in three notrump, giving up on the spade prospects.

When the opponents have bld all four suits, the fourth one is usually the first choice for an upening lead and the third suit the second choice. Here West had good reason to prefer a cinb sequence-lead to a risky lead from a heart queen,

So wheo East won the next two tricks with the spade honors, South did the right thing by discarding both his clubs and scoring his ninth trick with the diamond king at the finish,

It was May 24, 1383, the most important day of public ceremony in New York since the opening of the Eric Canal, for it marked the completion of the magnificent "Fast River Bridge," whely regarded then and now on the most beautiful suspension bridge in the world. The occasion was a building for all New York and Brooklyn. There were only a few dissenters There were only a lew dissenters—the builder, who deplored all the fuss; the militant Irish, who objected because the celebration was held on Queen Victoria's birthday, and the first rustic visitor to be conned into buying the

The impact of the souring. structure upon the American imagination and American life has now been measured with segacity and style by David Mc-Cullough, author of "The Johns-town Plood," a writer with a sound intuitive sense of what to put in and what to leave out of his narrative. The account of the building is supplemented by deft portraits of the heroes and antiheroes who helped to construct, or obstruct, the enterprise. The bridge was never regarded as just another useful public improvement. Even before it was opened. Mr. McCullough writes, "it had become a symbol of something impossible to define that made New York different from every other city on earth."

The idea of connecting lower Manhattan with Brooklyn was as old as the century. It took shape as a serious proposal in 1869 as a result of the dynamism of John Angustis Roebling, innovative en-gineer and wealthy wire-rope manufacturer. Then when oll necursary clearances had been obtrined and work was about to begin. Roebling's foot was crushed in an improbable accident at the Brooklyn slip of the Fulton Street ferry. He died horribly of tetanus, as macabre stories circulated to the effect that the only safe bridge was one that had claimed

Physically incapacitated, he never set foot on his bridge, while for Il years his contact with the actual construction was handled through his remarkable wife, Emily. On the day of the grand opening, Roebling "sat alone at his window, his field glasses trained on the bridge, watching the procession until the last top-hatted figures... passed beneath the arches of the Brooklyn tower." Davis Cup play. Smith said yesterday that he was the No. 1 advocate of the Davis Cup. This year was the fifth consecutive one that he donated his time to "the national cause," and lost a considerable amount of money by doing so. The Total Loss

Probably, the four of us on the team lost about $150,000 from playing in the cup," Smith said at a conference last night with Bill and George standing guard at the door. "The four of us" the U.S. team-are Tom Gorman, Harold Solomon, Brik Van Dilien and Smith. If the Davis Cup format is not changed, Smith probably won't represent the United States next year, when he will be needed most, Smith said that he might stick around if the U.S. team acquired a sponsor. That would mean that the money he and his teammates lost by playing Davis Cup matches instead of rich tournaments would be made up by companies willing to give the U.S. team money in return for the publicity its donations would re-

Griese Praises Morrall

MIAMI, Oct. 16 (UPI) .- Bob Griese, the Miami Dolphin quarterback, accepted an apology today from the man who smashed his right leg, and predicted that his replacement, Earl Morrall, would take the Dolphins back to the Super Bowl.

Griese was tackled by a San Diego defensive lineman, Ron East, midway through the first quarter of the game yesterday and suffered a broken small bone of his right leg and a dislocated ankle. The team physician, Dr. Herbert Birgin, estimated it might be eight weeks before Griese could play again.

After Griese was carried off the field, Morrall passed for touchdowns to Howard Twilley in the second quarter and to Paul Warfield in the third.

The relief assignment is not a strange one to Morrall, who came to the Dolphins from Baltimore on waivers during the off-season. In 1968, he replaced an injured Johnny Unites, and led the Colts to 15 victories and a trip to the Super Bowl. He threw yard touchdown pass to wide re-

Colts Replace Head Coach

BALTIMORE Oct. 16 (UPI).— The Baltimore Colts fired head coach Don McCafferty today and replaced him with defensive line coach John Sandusky.

McCafferty, who became head coach of the Colts in 1970, after Don Shule left for the Mismi Dolphins, had a record of 31-5-1 for his two seasons. However, the Colts, crippled this year by injuries to such star performers as defensive end Bubbs Smith and running back Norm Bulaich, have a 1-4 record this season following yesterday's 21-0 loss to the Dallas Cowboys. Sandusky, who was named to the head coaching post for the rest of the season, joined the Colts as defensive line coach in 1959, switched to the offense as coach in 1963 and switched back to the defense in 1969. He was a standout tackle on both offense and defense for seven seasons with the Green Bay Packers and the Gleveland Browns before retiring in 1956.

McCafferty, before becoming head coach of the Colts, served 21 years as an assistant coach, 11 of them with the Colts. He joined Baltimore in 1959 as offensive end coach and scout, assuming the backfield directorship in 1963, when Don Shuls became

Smith Hopes Davis Cup Play Will Be Subsidized by 1973

By Bernard Kirsch Next year's Davis Cup play will

The U.S. Davis Cup team said have some new old faces, ingood-bye to Bill and George to-cluding Australia's John Newday, and are looking forward to combe, who reportedly has signed saying hello to a new look for the en agreement with the Australian Tennis Federation, Allowed in next year's cup play will be the World Championship Tennis professionals whose contracts expire at the end of this year. But again, the WCT men would not give away their time, not after being spoiled by the wealth of Lamar Hunt's contracts. A second change in 1973 cup play will be a division of countries according to their tennis power. To open, weak tennis countries will play one another with the eight survivors playing eight countries in the "middlestrength" category. Then comes the real thing.

And in 1973, the United States hopes that the real thing will be in the United States. The defending champions went on a Davis Cup tour this year, not playing a match at home. Champions have been known to walt for challengers to come to them.

Raiston Angered

Dennis Ralston, the U.S. captain, was furious when he learned that the United States would have to defend in Romania. Last night he said that Bucharest "was the toughest place to win I've seen anywhere." Several tennis people, and players, said the final should be played on a neutral site. When the United States was presented with the Davis Cup yesterday at the Progresul court, Rakton, known as a flery player but now a "mature cool," captain, said diplomatically:

We look forward to Romania coming back to the United States next year for the finals." He didn't even grin afterward.

Once, Jets' Snell Was the King

By Dave Anderson

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (NYT).-It's all over now for Matt Snell, who is recuperating from surgery for a ruptured spleen. Some people hardly notic-New York Jets' big running back now, but Riggins understood.

"Don't compare me to Matt Snell," he said re-

"Matt Snell was the king."

This was a football player. The night before Super Bowl III, the Jets gathered for their team snack, a club ritual before a road game. It's usually a small gathering, but that time it resembled a nightchub dinner show. More than 200 players, coaches, club officials, newsmen, wives, relatives and friends had gath-ered in a hotel banquet room in Miami. When the buffet table had been emptied, Bake Turner, then a Jet wide receiver, plucked his guitar and sang while Andre Kostelanetz, the conductor of the New York Philharmonic, played the piano. The rendition of "Malaguena" provoked serious

"Rey there, Bake," somebody called, "you really carried that plano player." Not Everybody Laughed

Not everybody laughed. In a far corner, Matt Snell stared stiently, without a smile. He was wearing a black shirt and black bermuda shorts. With his black body in the shadows, the whites of his eyes sparkled as if lit by a flame.

"Look at his eyes," somebody said, noticing him.
"Will you look at his eyes."

The next day, those eyes glowed behind his face mask as he ran for 121 yards in 30 carries—each still a Super Bowl record. He scored the Jets' only touchdown in their historic 16-7 upset of the Baltimore Colts, When the Jets were killing the clock in the final minute, Joe Namath used him on six consecutive plays. He ran like a man possessed, and he was. Possessed by the memory of insults.

"I know why you signed with the Jets." a stranger ooce told him. "You knew you couldn't make it with the Glants."

The Jets, then in reconstruction by Weeb Ew-bank, had made him their first-round selection him in their third round, more for nuisance value. They didn't appear serious about signing him but were more interested in forcing Sonny Warblin, then the Jets' president, to hid higher and higher in the competitive war that existed then for

"There's no guarantee." a Giant official said smugly, "that he'll make our club."

It was one of the Giants' most damaging mistakes. Matt Snell would have made anybody's club. At his best, he was perhaps the most com-plete back in pro football—a workhorse runner, brutal blocker. His true grit as a player, and as a man, is that he never permitted his personal relationship with Namath, cool at best, to intrude on his responsibility.

He protected the quarterback as he would his eon. Blitzing linebackers shied from him. But for all his fame as a back, he retained the soul of a linebacker.

"T'd rather be a linebacker," he once said. "On detense, there's more of a challenge than on offense. On defense, you don't know what's coming. You have to analyze and react. And you have to be right."

He almost was a linebacker. When the Jets signed him. Ewbank wasn't sure where to use him. At Ohio State, he had played every position but quarterback, center and guard on offense; tackle and middle guard on defense. Ewbank pondered between running back and linebacker.
The coach chose well, but Matt Snell might have been equally accomplished as a linebacker. And he might still be playing.

Leading the League

He was leading the National Football League in rushing two years ago when the injuries began -a torn achilles tendon, a damaged knee, now the ruptured spleen. The tendency is to feel sorry for him, but with Snell, that's probably the wrong thing to do. In the closing minutes of Super Bowl III, he was standing on the sideline next to John Free, the Jets' traveling secretary.

"Look at John Unites out there," said Free, once a Colt employee. 'I can't help but feel sarry

"Don't feel sorry for him," Snell snapped, "If we'd lost, he wouldn't be feeling sorry for you."

Will you stop worrying about your place in history? We took a survey, and it showed that the public oouldn't care less about the Watergate and the other things that have come out concerning our operation. The at-titude is 'everyone does it during an election year."

"That's just swell," the New Nixon said sareastically. "But do you know how many man-hours the Justice Department, the FBI and the White House have spent on this problem? I've had to promise a complete and open investigation of every facet of the case. "And you've done a good job on it, Dickey boy," the Old Nixon chortled. "They won't be able to lay a finger on us before Election

"Don't be so smug." the New Nixon said. "You've made a mess of things, and I'm giving you an order to stay out of the offices of the Committee to Re-Elect the President. I don't want anyone in the White House to have anything to do with my campaign." "You can't do that to me," the Old Nixon protested. 'The Dirty Tricks Department was my baby. It was the only fun I've had in four years. What am I going to do now?"

"You're to stay in your room

"Suppose I don't? Suppose I spill everything to The Washingtop Post?" the Old Nixon asked. "Don't threaten me, Tricky." the New Nixon said. "If you do anything to further embarrass me or endanger my re-election, I will turn over to Kleindienst everything I know about your involvement with the Howard Hughes loan. Do I make myself perfectly clear?

The Old Nixon, looking down-cast and defeated, said, "Yes sir, Mr. President."

Balanchine's Tour of the Soviet Union

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW (WP).-A nondescript young man in a gray raincoat suddenly darted out of the crowd, slipped the rope that held shut the big doors to the Kremlin Palace, stepped quickly through and-pulling off his coat on the runtried to melt into the elite croud inside. For a heart-stopping moment it looked as though he would make it. Then a fastmoving plainclothesman from the big security staff brought a hand down forcefully on the young mon's shoulder, and dragged him away.

That is not a scene from a new spy thriller, but from the New York City Ballet's five-day stand in Moscow. The man in the gray poplin raincoat was a human harometer for the occasion, an indicator of the interest that a major cultural event from New York can provoke in Moscow.

The New York City Ballet's 24-day tour of the Soviet Union, 27 performances in four cities, ended Saturday night with 10 minutes of applause and curtain calls for George Balanchine and his dancers. Balanchine, who was born in Leningrad (then St. Petersburg) 68 years ago, in-dicated that this triumphal conclusion would end his last trip to the Soviet Union with the ballet troupe he created.

If true, this news will disappoint a large Soviet following of fans and even cultural officials which Balanchine cultivated on this visit and on his first trip here 10 years ago. The Russians took Balanchine as one of their own, noting his ties to the classical Russian ballet in the public print, then turning the other cheek to the modernistic transgressions of his dancing, which would never be permitted in a Soviet ballet company.

The Soviet public has been educated in ballet by the classical mastery of the Bolshoi and Kirov companies, but is sel-dom able to see anything remotely contemporary. The New York City Ballet's first visit in 1962 was unprecedented, and memories of it created great expectations for this year's tour. That young man sneaking into the Kremlin Palace was one of thousands who tried any number of tricks to get into one of the performances.

Pressure for Tickets

The pressure for tickets was remarkable. "I saw Heroes of Socialist Labor come up to the box office and ask for a ticket, and they were told, 'No tickets!' " one humble Russian who walted in long lines later reported. "A delegate to the Supreme Soviet came up and showed his card, Member of the Supreme Soviet, and they told him, 'No tickets!' " That sort of disregard for high status is uncommon here. Every night hundreds of hopeful but ticketless citizens stood outside the 17thcentury Kutafia Tower on the edge of the Kremlin, asking every passerby if he had an "extra ticket." Scalpers charged from 10 to 50 rubles for a five-ruble seat, despite the fact that Moscow's Palace of Congresses holds 6,000 people.

George Balanchine . . . a native son almost.

The highest scalpers' prices, predictably, were charged in Thilisi, the capital of Soviet Georgia and a town known for its general exuberance. The Georgians' inclinations were all exaggerated for the New York City Ballet, because they regard Balanchine as a native son. (He almost

On the last night in Tbilisi, hundreds of fans without tickets broke into the theater. At the end of that performance, the curtain calls lasted for 20 minutes.

Thilisi was the most colorful stop on the tour. Balanchine was born 'Balanchivadze," as good a Georgian name as there is. hough his youth in St. Petersburg was completely Russian, and he speaks Russian but not Georgian.

No matter. His younger brother (by two years), Andrei Balanchivadze, is now president of the Georgian Union of Composers. "Tiflis was full of relatives I never even knew of," Balanchine said later, using the ancient name for Tbilisi which was officially dropped in the early 1930s.

Lots of relatives turned out to be resourceful ticket scavengers, but many were also genuine. They gave the prodigal son a banquet one evening after the performance, It lasted through gallons of Georgian wine, long into the morning. Though most of the reaction to the New York company was enthusiastic, this wasn't universal In Moscow, some young members of the intelligentsia said they had hoped for something more avantgarde than they saw-a reflection both of their growing awareness of what is going on outside and of the rather conservative repertoire that Balanchine brought here after consultation with Soviet officials.

Opening nights in Kiev, Lemmerad and Moscow (but not in Thilisi) were also rather cool, but this probably reflects the Soviet system for allocating tickets to glamorous events. First priority goes to those with the most influence, often mean ing senior party and government officials who could not be expected to show much enthusiasm for a dance ensemble from New York.

Even if Soviet officialdom sat on its hands in the theater, Balanchine's group received one of the warmest receptions any American performers have ever been given here. His dances were reviewed enthu-siastically in the Soviet press, and the minister of culture, Yeksterina Furiseva, even gave a luncheon party for the entire company. It was an unusual gesture.

A Proposal

Soviet officials urged Balanchine to return here to teach several of his ballets to the Bolshoi company, a proposal he promised to consider. If he taught one of his many pieces without any dramatic plot, it would represent a revolution in Soviet ballet. Though a perfect diplomat in public, Balanchine indicated privately here that he was not eager to put up with the hardships of work in the Soviet Union

The company encountered a series of catastrophes on tour, none of which proved too serious to cope with, though one of the Soviet officials assigned to help the group dropped out early with high blood pressure One American dancer lost a filling in a tooth, and had the unusual experience of visiting one of the big rooms where groups of Soviet dentists work together filling or (more often, it seems) removing teeth. She got a new filling-with novocaine, though the dentist was against it.

Opening night in Moscow was a backstage pandemonium thanks to an epidemic of stomach troubles, but the show went

The American dancers had little time for mingling with the public, though their New York fashions caused a stir wherever they went. The teenagers in the corps de ballet had one encounter with Soviet police: A young man who had taken a fancy to the company in Kiev followed it to Leningrad. where he was officially unwelcome. Police roughed him up and dragged him off in front of a busload of American dancers.
